

nano gallery

a big idea for smaller art

Dang bread left behind yall, Buck Downs, 2015

Facebook Photos by Poets

curated by Phyllis Rosenzweig

Buck Downs, K. Lorraine Graham, Dan Gutstein, Mel Nichols, Meg Ronan, Rod Smith, Ryan Walker

February 5 - April 10

Opening Reception: Friday, February 5, 7-9 pm

These images, by seven D.C. poets, are downloaded from their Facebook posts or, in one case, an iPhone. Some are ironic, some contemplative, and most are surprisingly beautiful. Some are from found sources (Facebook is about sharing, not just “authoring”- as is, arguably, some of these poets’ writing). The exhibition does not propose specific correlations between their pictures and their writing; however, these poets seem equally adept at using both words and pictures to note what is remarkable/strange/ funny/ironic/or just pretty amazing. The exhibition was conceived specifically for the nano gallery, which leads to the theater where DCAC hosts the monthly “In Your Ear” reading series in which all of these poets regularly participate. Special thanks to Jessica Cebra, and to Jose Ruiz and Olivia Weise at Furthermore.