

Dichromatic.05, 2017, Silk, cotton, 8"x8"

nano gallery

a big idea for smaller art

Counterpoint

Sarah J. Hull

March 24 - July 16

Opening Reception: Friday, March 31 at 7-9 pm

Artist Talk and Closing Reception: Sunday, July 16 at 5 pm

Hull's work explores the natural variation that occurs with repetition. Using silk thread, cotton ground fabric, and fundamental hand embroidery stitches, each piece is an exploration of a simple meditative theme. Within each element, the basic theme is systematically altered to create an evolving meditative complexity - both within itself and in the context of the series. The palette is restricted to simple black and white to highlight the "artist's hand" in stitching each piece.

DCAC's Nano Gallery is located within the main gallery and is dedicated to presenting miniature and smaller works in an exhibition setting.